Levels of migration have risen sharply in recent years both amongst EU citizens moving within the community and migrants from many other countries moving to the EU as economic migrants, refugees and asylum seekers.

Difficulties have arisen within many sectors such as health, education, welfare and legal & justice as those working in these areas struggle to cope with the changes resulting in the influx of these new arrivals in our societies. Difficulties also arise for the migrants as they attempt to transact normal everyday business in unfamiliar environments.

This is the motivation for the SONETOR project which is co-funded by the EU Lifelong Learning Programme of LEONARDO DA VINCI Multilateral Projects for Development of innovation.

The project aims at helping CULTURAL MEDIATORS through creating useful products for its stakeholders.

The SONETOR project provides training materials and workshops, as well as a social networking platform for the training and development of cultural mediators and the establishment of a virtual community of those working in the field of cultural mediation.

All professionals and students who formally or informally interact with immigrants can benefit from the SONETOR project outcomes.
